

Innovative development and sustainable new products to premiere at the HTI Innovation Corner

Following a four-year break, INTERALPIN is finally returning, bigger and more eventful than ever after the interruption of the pandemic. LEITNER too is looking forward to a comeback, since this is where the company can demonstrate the full extent of its performance and innovation, and thus the key role it plays in the technological advancement and economic revitalization of the Alpine regions.

LEITNER will use InterAlpin to address energy costs and the demand for sustainable solutions by presenting its familiar products, as well as some new ones. By focusing closely on technological innovation in recent years, LEITNER has been able to position itself at the evolutionary forefront with successful developments such as LEITNER DirectDrive, LeitDrive, and LEITNER EcoDrive.

LEITNER concentrates especially on the universal use of these resource-saving solutions, in both implementing new ropeways and modernizing existing ones. Special consideration is given to year-round infrastructure use and custom ropeway designs.

LEITNER has already responded to the strong mountain biking trend and offers the option of adapting ropeway systems for summer use with two intelligent products for chairlifts and gondola lifts.

New products to be unveiled at the show include LEITNER's mobile intermediate suspension for the 2S system, which is an innovative development of the revised system first introduced in 2019.

LEITNER will also present some of its leading cabins: the Symphony and Symphony 10 luxury cabins can be admired again alongside the two Diamond EVO premium cabins in their summer and winter editions. Then there are two premium 6-seater chairlifts.

Developments in the field of digitalization will also be on show at the LEITNER stand. For example, the certified digital logbook, it's the simple way to complete the legally required documentation for the operation of the ropeway. In addition, visitors can expect, among other things, specially customizable plans in the area of the maintenance tool as well as optimized reporting and analysis displays for the ropeway management.

As well as its latest products, LEITNER will be presenting a completely new impulse in innovation at INTERALPIN: the HTI Innovation Corner, where a number of HTI Group companies as well as external experts and customers will be holding a series of short presentations in Hall D. These will showcase unique innovations and best practice examples from the areas of sustainability and digitalization, as well as visions for the future.
